As we pack away summer clothing and bring out the winter things, try freshening up your closets and drawers as you go along a scented candle, bar of soap, or a few drops of perfume on a piece of flannel in the bottom of each drawer will keep its contents fresh and sweet smelling. A small pan of lime, placed out of reach, will purify the air in a room or closet fresh. Refill the pan every few weeks.

Eliminate Wash-Day Blues

BLACKSBURG -- Singing the blues is a traditional, and at times enjoyable, method of relieving tensions, frustrations, and fatigue. But singing the wash-day blues can be avoided according to Wanda A. Golden, Virginia Tech instructor in the College of Home Economics and Extension specialist in housing.

It is obvious that the larger the family, the more laundry that needs to be done; but even small families produce a sizeable pile of soiled clothing and household linens each week. If the home laundry is poorly located and equipped, the homemaker will waste a considerable amount of extra time and energy getting the job done.

For many years, the home laundry was located in the basement and the homemaker had to trudge up and down stairs many times in order to get the week's laundry done. Today, appliance manufacturers have designed their equipment for location in more convenient areas within the home. Two areas highly recommended are the bedroom-bathroom and the kitchen.

The bedroom-bathroom area is being chosen by an increasing number of homemakers. Most soiled linens originate there and most soiled clothing is removed there. It is, therefore, an ideal location for the laundry hamper and the washer and dryer.

Also, the necessary plumbing is relatively near and laundry equipment installation should be reasonably easy and economical.

The kitchen area is popular with many homemakers because of the amount of time they spend there and the proximity of necessary plumbing.

There are many other good locations for the home laundry that should be considered in spite of the fact that additional plumbing costs may be encountered. A family or hobby room is one such choice; a spare bedroom, patio, breezeway, or carport are others.

Miss Golden recommends that, no matter where the home laundry is located, adequate space be provided for the laundry hamper, for the storage of necessary supplies, and for working convenience.

She also reminds the homemaker that it may be possible and advantageous to combine the laundry, ironing, and sewing areas. Such an area might result in a lot of singing, but not the wash-day blues.

Travel on Virginia's major roads increased 5.9 per cent last year, and the interstate system, with 9 per cent of the mileage, served more than 32 per cent of the traffic, according to the State Department of Highways.

One of the state government's most frequently requested publications is the official state highway map, updated and re-issued each year by the Department of Highways. One and a half million copies will be distributed this year. They are available without charge from the department, the Virginia State Travel Service and other travel organizations, and from highway information stations.

CONCORD RESCUE SQUAD READY FOR FUND DRIVE

CONCORD — Members of the Concord Rescue Squad will start a door to door canvass Monday to open the squad's annual fund-raising campaign. The goal is $10,000.

The funds are needed, Regie Spradlin, squad president, said to meet expenses for next year and purchase an additional "much needed" ambulance.

A federal grant of $7,480 will cover part of the cost of the ambulance, Spradlin said, but the sum must be matched by the squad.

According to Bill Mann, public relations officer, during its first year the squad responded to 269 calls, traveling 12,398 miles and expending 1150 manhours.

The canvass will be made only in the Concord area. Other donations may be mailed to the squad at P. O. Box 48, Concord, 24538.

Mann said that of 89 persons treated after auto accidents last year, only 26 were from the Concord area. This was attributed to the heavily traveled section of Rt. 460 near Concord.

The Virginia House of Burgesses in 1632 passed the first act in American history establishing a system of road administration. The act specified that the Governor and certain other officials -- or parishioners within a given parish -- should designate the location or roads, and that every man in the colony should be responsible for the construction and maintenance of the roads.
